Message from the Editors

It has been a wonderful opportunity to work as your editors for the school year 2019-2020. This school year has definitely been a remarkable one. It started with smiles and laughter but later on was replaced with uncertainty. Due to the global Covid-19 pandemic, it has been difficult, not only for Hong Kong, but for the world as well. We experienced many challenges and obstacles that stopped us from attending school; for students our education on campus is paramount. That is why our theme for this year’s yearbook is “Learning Never Ceases”, because we believe that we are constantly learning and growing, despite circumstances that might hinder us. However, it is also a year to remember, for it has taught us a lot. The recent trials in Hong Kong and the rest of the world have taught us to be resilient through these times; we have learnt to be more empathetic to those around us, to be patient and hopeful, despite the odds seeming rather unfavorable. One of the most important lessons that this year has taught us is to be grateful. There may be struggles, due to extraordinary events that we faced this year; however, we chose not to look back and sigh over what we missed. Instead, we’ve learned to overcome, and we look forward to what lies ahead. Because when we do so, we start to appreciate all the little things that seem to go unnoticed in the past. School life isn’t just about the big events or the parties to which we looked forward. Even if we didn’t realize it, it’s the little things that keep us going. It’s the friendships we’ve made, memories we created, the knowledge we’ve obtained, and most importantly the growth we’ve had to become better versions of ourselves. If we keep this positivity around us, only smiles, progression, and beautiful memories will be remembered. Each one of us should always and constantly strive to be better than before. We should try to improve our circumstances, because in every season of our lives, we must continuously learn and rise above adversity. Although we are not able to have our education in a traditional classroom sense, we believe that our learning never ceases. The things we pick up along the way are what will help guide us to be potentially noteworthy in the future. Do not be worried about the future. We are more in God’s hands than we can comprehend, more equipped and empowered than we think, and more safe and protected than we feel.

from the President

A look back at year 2019 through the lens of the Hong Kong Adventist College yearbook might lead people to think that 2019 has been a prosperous year in Hong Kong. In spite of the fact that 2019 brought Hong Kong its unsettled protests, riots, and political turmoil, our Clear Water Bay campus remained peaceful and tranquil.

During the 2019-2020 school year, to accommodate the additional courses we now offer, our campus added many facilities such as new classrooms, an integrated science laboratory, piano instruction, and practice rooms. In addition, a new outdoor stage commemorates our college being here for 80 years, and a major renovation to King Huy Hall made it more attractive and user friendly. The purpose of these additions and renovations was to create a better teaching and learning environment for our students and faculty.

In spite of the outlay for all these major physical improvements, the financial statements of the college have been positive for the past four consecutive years. Generous donations by our friends and alumni funded all these campus renovations, thereby, saving the college from having to take funds from the general operating budget.

On campus, the five student ambassadors, who lived among us this school year, have created a significant and positive impact to the overall academic and spiritual atmosphere. They greatly helped academically challenged students, while living a Christian lifestyle that helped students to know Christ. I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude for their selfless contribution to our college this year.

Something new in this yearbook is a section on the activities of HKAC students at Andrews University. For the past three years, more than 40 HKAC students transferred to Andrews. Called by the name Overseas Chinese Student Association, this group of HKAC transfer students has become a noticeable element of the student body at Andrews. They gather regularly for special dinners, study sessions, worship services, and all of the Chinese festivals. We can now consider Andrews University as an extended campus of Hong Kong Adventist College.

As you enjoy reading this yearbook, please join me in thanking our God in heaven for His wonderful blessings upon our campus this year. May God continue to guide the development of our college so that more young people will get to know Him and that His name will be glorified.

Message
from the Academic Dean

In the academic world, we see college youths arrive with potential that necessitates discovery and nurturing.

Academic institutions are filled with youths who have great potential yet to be discovered and nurtured. These responsibilities lie in the hands of dedicated educators, as they render their teaching services to meet “the greatest want of the world [which] is the want of men — men who will not be bought or sold, men who in their inmost souls are true and honest, men who do not fear to call sin by its right name, men whose conscience is as true to duty as the needle to the pole, men who will stand for the right though the heavens fall” (E. G. White, Education, page 57).

The fear of the known and unknown and our limitations often hinder us from using or even attempting the potentials God has bestowed upon each and every one of us. This will remain an obstacle until we claim the promise in Philippians 4:13 (NLT), “For I can do everything with the help of Christ who give me the strength I need.”

So let us trust in the Lord and follow Him, and we will find out that no hurdle is too big, and no dream is too small, when we take the step to trust and believe in Him. Let Him guide and lead the way. There will be no limit to what God can do through us, as we develop the full potential to serve God and humankind.

Learning Never Ceases

Before I came to Hong Kong Adventist College, I worked as a chaplain at SDA Language Institute in South Korea. The place where I worked was located in Sinchon where many famous universities in South Korea are located. That's why, most of the students who came to my institute were university students.

One day there was an orientation session for new students who came to learn English every two months. I noticed someone, whose hair looked distinctly different, sitting in a corner of the auditorium. She looked like a college student who dyed her hair in a unique color; but in fact, she was a gray-haired grandmother! Learning English is not easy for even young students who prepare to study abroad or seek a job, so I wondered why she came to study English at her age. I spoke with her separately after the orientation. Then she gave me her slightly shy answer. "I am 70 years old this year. I have grandchildren who are primary students who can already read, write, and speak English. So, I'm here to learn English to help them." Additionally, she stressed to me, "Pastor, Learning never ceases!"

Although her physical age was 70, this intelligent lady possessed a passion for learning like that of a teenager! That day I learned from her that learning never ceases and that physical age is not important, especially in continuing education. I was able to see how wonderfully she continued to challenge herself and how she tried to acquire a fairly high level of English conversation.

Therefore, I would like to recommend three wise words you should know as a student, and appreciate, 'Learning Never Ceases.'
Let's become lifelong learners without graduation!

I can say that a person who studies and learns continuously throughout his or her life is eternally youthful. Our lives are actually a series of endless classes. According to the 言志四錄 “If you learn as a child, you will achieve things when you grow up. If you learn as a youth, you will not become weak. When you learn as you age, you will not perish.” That is, our lives are both the continuation of learning until we pass on into the next Realm and also a process of becoming something. Therefore, we all should live with humility and grit and with a student’s attitude for lifelong education.

Let all whom you meet and with whom you relate be your teacher, regardless of the place.

Of course, the teacher in the classroom is your main teacher, but if you learn how to use a computer from your classmate outside the classroom, then he or she is also your teacher. If you learn a good recipe from your mother, then she is also your teacher. Undoubtedly the HKAC campus is full of teachers. It is one of the blessings of studying at this campus that you can learn various things inside and outside the classroom. This is because you have the benefit of all the successes, failures, joys, and sorrows you have not experienced, from kind teachers, dormitory deans, the school chaplain, the campus gardener, and from student ambassadors. Eventually, everyone you meet in your life is your teacher. While they are in your life, you will continue to learn daily from their collective wisdom.

Let’s be humble learners of any age or position by asking questions and listening.

Furthermore, you should not be ashamed to ask HKAA students younger than yourself: Confucius said, referring to a pupil. "He is intelligent, enjoys learning and is not ashamed to ask a question of someone younger than him." The wiser the personality, the more humble he or she listens to the opinions of those who are younger or lower in rank. This reinforces an attitude of learning. Lifelong learning is an attitude we will discover more each day, as we commit to learning from everyone around us by asking questions and listening attentively.

Dear students (learners), please take those attitudes and intentions to learn wherever you go. I hope you will never cease learning and thereby becoming eternally young by living your whole life open to education, new ideas, and new insights wherever you go. Enjoy your life with endless learning!

A Challenging Year,
Yet Lived Abundantly

2019-2020 has been a very challenging year for Hong Kong. Classes were suspended for Fall and Spring semesters, due to the social unrest and pandemic of COVID-19, respectively. The faculty and students of the Department of Psychology are not immune. With God’s grace, we are able to walk through difficulties and uncertainty, grow stronger, and become wiser.

One major change that affected the College the most was the change of mode of delivery to online learning/teaching. During this period of time, the faculty members were learning together with the students.

When I was preparing myself, three questions came to my mind from time to time:

1. How can I stay connected with my students?
2. Am I equipped with the knowledge and skills to carry out online learning/teaching?
3. How well will my students receive this new mode of learning?

First, two keys to answer these questions: time and communication. Time here means more than the hours we (the staff, faculty and students) put in, but also the effort (both mentally and physically), the practices, and sometimes the waiting for a better way! Not only had we sent out announcements, answered questions and enquiries, and prompted students to complete their assignments, but we also asked for help, prayed, shared tears, and received caring messages. We moved well beyond Zoom and Moodle!

Second, I found out my students were more confident than me in using the technology in their learning process, both in terms of technological knowledge and psychological readiness. They understood clearly that some of their professors were learning this new “dance,” and they moved their steps along with the music played. Moreover, God has been providing us with good IT support. Big thank yous to Dave and Tommy for their diligent and tireless tech support!

Third, I keep reminding others and myself the importance of keeping ourselves healthy mentally and spiritually. The story of Jesus calming the storm in the Sea of Galilee reminds me of the following, as we move forward, slowly and steadily:

~ Don’t panic, the Lord is in the boat.
~ Trust God because of His leading in the past, and He will lead us to the future.
~ Fix our eyes upon Jesus and keep our eyes and minds open!

Jesus promised, “I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.” (John 10:10). This is the vision of the Department of Psychology.

This divine assurance is also my prayer to you all!

Message from the Health Department Chair

The 2019/2020 academic year was an exciting yet challenging one. It was exciting because a new, purpose-made exercise flooring that was installed in the Fitness Center. At the same time, a series of new weight training machines were purchased with funding from the Hong Kong Adventist College Foundation.

With these new machines, the majority of students were actively engaged in fitness routines and learned how to use the exercise machines from Mondays to Thursdays. This positive atmosphere and enthusiasm to get fit has extended to other sports as well, such as playing football, basketball, and even learning Tai Chi. Our President, Dr. Dan Cheung, has given one hour per week for the faculty and staff to get involved in various sports and exercise, which has contributed to the serene yet energetic life on the HKAC campus.

With the school-wide suspension of classes during the social unrest in Fall Semester 2019 and the COVID-19 virus currently in Spring Semester 2020, it has been challenging for both teachers and students to adjust to in online teaching and learning. As a Chinese saying states, “learning never ceases”! Therefore, the online learning experience allowed both teachers and students to grasp the new uses of technology and a new way of thinking and learning. Because of the pandemic new “opportunities” were developed to think outside the box for future methods of education.

As we face the troubles of the world with natural disasters, disease outbreaks, social unrest, and wars, we believe that Jesus’ second coming is very soon. May we hold on to the promise of Jesus: “These things I have spoken to you, so that in Me you may have peace. In the world you have tribulation, but take courage; I have overcome the world.” (John 16: 33 - New American Standard Bible).

“In this closing work of the gospel, there is a vast field to be occupied; and, more than ever before, the work is to enlist helpers from the common people. Both the youth and those older in years will be called from the field, from the vineyard, and from the workshop, and sent forth by the Master to give His message...With such an army of workers as our youth, rightly trained, might furnish, how soon the message of a crucified, risen, and soon-coming Saviour might be carried to the whole world!” Ed 269-273.

Lao Tzu wrote, “A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step.”

No matter what plan you create for a long journey, the first step is crucial—getting started. So begin with a single step, one step at a time, and realize that this humble step will one day take you to a destination that you may reach only years later. Start off with a single step and build upon it until it becomes the destination you have planned!

Winston Churchill once said, “Never give in. Never give in. Never, never, never, never—in nothing, great or small, large or petty—never give in, except to convictions of honor and good sense. Never yield to force. Never yield to the apparently overwhelming might of the enemy.”

An important lesson in life that you can learn is to never ever give up: Always persevere. If you fall down, get back up and try again no matter whether it is the first time or the thousandth times. Whatever challenges you are facing, keep pushing forward. Each time you get up and try again you will develop more strength and wisdom to move forward. Set goals for yourself and never stop reaching for the goals.

Diploma in Pre-University Studies

Message from the DPUS Program Director

A Chinese proverb goes:
“Failure is the mother of success.”
失败是成功之母.
Shi bài shì chéng gōng zhī mǔ.

One of the many important lessons taught in the Diploma in Pre-University Studies (DPUS) program is that failure is not about falling down but rather refusing to get up. Through failures, one learns to avoid ways that do not work. Through persistence, like Thomas Edison who was said to have made about a thousand unsuccessful attempts before he “created the first commercially practical incandescent light”, one can also achieve success.

The DPUS program was established to open doors of opportunities for students who refuse to give up but believe that they too can make a difference for the betterment of humanity in this world. More than just a bridge that links the high School to the tertiary level programs, the DPUS program helps to links students to their Creator.

Understanding that they were created in the image of God (Genesis 1:27), DPUS students find meaning and purpose in life. This purpose drives them to discover their potential and abilities and to use these gifts as God intended.

The road is never easy, but the journey is worth it. Gilberto Vega once said, “God never promised that if you give your heart to him your life will be a bed of roses and the sun will shine. However, he promises to be with us in every storm.” Joshua 1:5 “I will never leave you nor forsake you.” Roman 5:3 “Not only so, but we also glory in our sufferings, because we know that suffering produces perseverance; perseverance, character; and character, hope.” DPUS is about HOPE.

The Music Program we are offering at HKAC is unique. First, we offer The Enjoyment of Music as a General Education subject to non-musicians, so as to introduce them to the amazing world of music. Then, we offer Applied Music to college students where many have found themselves learning to play the piano. Some have found it interesting to make music on an instrument. On the other hand, we have the Piano Course, which offers specialized keyboard training, from the beginning all the way up to the Fellowship Diploma level. This is equivalent to a Master’s Degree Program in Piano. In less than a year, we have seen our students achieving Merit and Distinction in their External Music Exams, including the Professional Diplomas.

Hong Kong Adventist College provides dormitory facilities to both international students and local Hong Kong students. Because of this fact, living in the dorm gives students a full and interesting experience, allowing them to meet, interact and mingle with other students of many different places and cultures. Not only that, it provides a friendly and interactive environment for the students to grow in their own identities. It also allows the students to feel safe, while they are expanding their knowledge and education. As a very active campus filled with community events, we have many throughout the year, such as a Fall costume party, where we can wear our favorite character’s costume and vote for who has the best costume, an annual Christmas party, where we play games and exchange presents, birthday parties where dorm students play games and celebrate students’ birthday with cakes, and many other different and fun events. The college creates convivial atmosphere in which students bond, get to know each other, learn a lot and have fun. Living in the dorm is an experience of learning new cultures, making new friends, spiritual reflection, academic studies, and cultural activities.

Led by a remarkable instructor, Mr. Bart Bondo, choir class has been a lot of fun. Students with different vocal abilities and ranges got together on Wednesdays at 5:30 pm. It's been an equal balance of fun and learning with the group! Repetition and memorization initially feel like a struggle, until we heard the ensemble. All our voices made the magic of music and melody happen. Individually, we may have sounded off, but in unison, we sounded complete! The ambiance has been inexplicable, but we just know it's a good time every single time...

Hong Kong Adventist College (HKAC) is a special place of higher education with faculty and staff who care, love, and share their life experiences with students like no other college or university in Hong Kong. HKAC is constantly striving for spiritual revival on campus and within the students. The faculty and staff never miss an opportunity to provide for the spiritual needs within each of the students. They are always willing to share their insights with students, especially when it comes to their own personal walk and experience with God. Every school year, the college would make it known to the students about Gospel Week, which is when the college invites different speakers from around the world to give students a taste of how amazing God is and to help guide them in a Christian life. Furthermore, during Fall 2019 Gospel Week, God gave us the blessing of meeting a traveling choir team called the Golden Angels. They possessed beautiful voices and sang some inspirational songs, which touched the hearts of the students. Moreover, HKAC’s gospel week in Hong Kong Adventist College was an unforgettable event for all students who had been moved by the message of the speaker. His inspirational message persuaded one to be committed to follow the footsteps of Christ in the journey of the narrow road toward His second coming on Earth.

Finally an escape from all the schedules and assignments at school! Assembling groups and trailing to the beach. The weather is phenomenal and so is the company!

Professors and their pupils make conversation, pray and thank God for His treasures and blessings.

Amidst the 3 hours long event that flew by so fast, it suddenly occurs to this group of friends with the realisation of “how much more of these chances will we get?” Last year, we enjoyed the same event at the same time but with different people. How many more adventures until we separate ways and continue on with the circle of life?

Regardless, we embrace each other, while capturing laughs and shots of pure bliss.

There is a strange emptiness putting those moments into words. Is it separation anxiety or reminiscing the wholesome moments? It was a day to remember...a day for the books!
As an annual tradition at Hong Kong Adventist College, we enjoyed Environmental Day this year. On this day, students are dismissed from their classes and gather together to collect trash in areas near the school. Students were able to forget their assignments and classes for a day and focus on the environment around them. Hong Kong Adventist College students went on a hike towards one of the beaches near the school with the goal of collecting as much trash as possible along the way. Beyond that, they also aimed to clean the beach. Through this event, students were able to become more aware of their surroundings and also learn how actions can affect the environment.

Besides giving them an opportunity to care about the environment, this event also provided great fun for the students. They interacted a lot among themselves, while they collected trash and also later at the beach, where they got to spend some time together. This annual event always brings students together to educate them to care about the environment, one’s neighborhood, as well as forge closer bonds between classmates.

On October 18, 2019 everyone got up just a little earlier, but it wasn’t for class. This particular Friday was unlike other Fridays. It was the annual school Environmental Day, a combined event planned and organized by the Student Life Council, which is made up of student leaders from the different college departments, student ambassadors of Hong Kong Adventist College, and high school student leaders from Hong Kong Adventist Academy.

Divided into small groups led by student leaders and teachers, everyone headed off on a trek with trash bags in hand from the campus towards the first and second beaches of Clearwater Bay. The purpose of Environmental Day is to give everyone an opportunity to do something positive for the environment, and this time it was to clean up trash along the way.

All work and no play makes for a dull day, but that’s not the case for the students and teachers. Besides picking up trash along the way, Environmental Day is also a good opportunity for those involved to socialize. Students and teachers get to spend time together in a relaxed atmosphere outside of classrooms while doing good. A “win win” situation for planet earth, students, and teachers!

After a full morning of picking up trash, all the small groups met up at the second Clear Water Bay beach to relax and rest. One would be surprised that a total of approximately twenty large bags of trash were collected along the way. Afterwards, the trash bags were disposed of properly at a garbage disposal site and everyone was dismissed for the day. A meaningful day well spent!

The Christmas party was a successful event, with a plethora of fun activities and games for the students to enjoy. A mini choreography that was led by Jenny Suen was a definite hit amongst the students, as it was extremely well perceived with a high number of participants. The relaxing atmosphere allowed students, to mingle with one another as well as with the staff. Apart from that, students and the faculty engaged in a gift exchange and a mini quiz. Overall, the event was highly liked by the students, in general, and was definitely a memorable experience for all who participated.

Veggie Fest is that time of the year when many people, especially those residing in the Clear Water Bay Community, would assemble to attend the annual vegetarian festival. This year’s Veggie Fest was held on Sunday, 6 October 2019. Contending with Hong Kong’s current protest at that time, we expected fewer people to come to the Veggie Fest compared to last year. This was because there were difficulties with public transportation to the campus.

However, we were grateful for the unexpected crowd that came since morning to help out and support the event. By 8:00 AM, booths and stalls lined up and people started to flood the area. There were participants on the stage, presenting and entertaining those who came throughout the festival.

One of the groups, who participated in the event, was the school choir and a group of singers formed by Mrs. Rena Phua. The choir and chosen singers presented a few songs to make the event livelier. I could see people from different places enjoying this vibrant and fascinating festival. Personally, I love to be part of this Veggie Fest event, because I get to learn about things that are healthy and nutritious for the body and the environment. Moreover, we had the chance to participate in activities that would help shape our talents. The event was supposed to last from early morning to late afternoon. Unfortunately, by 4:00pm it started to rain heavily and strong winds prevented us from cooking and selling items. Most of us packed our stuff and head back to our own places. But, overall it was still an enjoyable event, and I look forward to the next one!

In 2019, I got the chance to minister in Cambodia and I have personally seen and I could testify how mission trips have changed the lives of the people and communities we served. But what amazes me even more is how I witnessed the mission trip members being transformed each day as they serve. Hong Kong Adventist College has served in different countries for more than nine years now. Thirty willing hearts decided to join this year’s trip to Mindoro Island, and we came back home with innumerable, beautiful experiences. I hope and pray that more students would engage themselves in mission trips, because this will definitely be a highlight in your college life. More than that, (trust me when I say this) being an instrument to reach out to help others is very fulfilling. With this, I thank Jesus Christ our Lord, who has given us strength, and his trust, to do his service.

A new musical electronic keyboard was gifted to the Mindoro Island school.
I’m glad that I had this wonderful experience. Since it was my first time joining a trip as a missionary. There were myriad obstacles. For example: The Philippines volcano exploded, plane tickets were cancelled, and one teammate had an accident. However, we were still able to make it, under God’s blessing. As a child who was born in a city, it was a precious opportunity to experience a whole week without a smartphone, television or video games. Not only were there enthusiastic Filipino citizens and original culture, but we also had a very pleasant time with local students in their school. To be honest, those children are really good at climbing mountains! Once I had to climb the mountain Kaupawan to do manual work and nearly fell. What a steep cliff it is; it’s absolutely INSANE!!! Fortunately, my friend held my arm tightly, so that an accident didn’t occur at that time. To conclude, I’ll undoubtedly participate in next year’s mission trip.

This was my third and probably my last time joining the annual mission trip. In the previous two times, I was fortunate to have my best friend Tina going with me, so everything went well. However, this time I had to go by myself. Just as the proverb goes "Good fortune follows upon disaster, disaster lurks within good fortune", the absence of my friend not only made me more independent, but it also enabled me to broaden my social life. Never did I imagine that one day I could become friends with all the members on the 2020 mission trip!

Under the influence of this fiercely competitive society and the cutthroat education system, inevitably, life taught me to judge and label people based on their academic achievement. This made me somewhat arrogant and led me to think that I must be better than all the students there, because I have a comparatively higher education level. Mingling with the Mindoro Island people made me realize how naïve and ignorant I am and that I know nothing more than the things that are going to be tested in an exam. Even a primary student there knows how to cook, and aside from that, she also knows a lot in terms of the importance of plants. For instance, a Mindoro Island pupil I befriended knows how to extract pigments from flowers and which plants can be used for healing. I was so amazed by all the things she knows; she became my teacher and taught me different kinds of things. Now I know that I should never look down on anyone, even if she is merely a primary school student much younger than me.

It was my fourth mission trip with the Hong Kong Adventist College team. Each mission trip taught me meaningful and impactful experiences, and this one surely did too.

The experiences I gained from this mission trip reflected how my life and spiritual walk were with God. This mission trip was a challenging one. The uncertainties that we faced before arriving to the mission field made me doubt and worry about how things would work out, but once again, God showed me His ways by enabling me to witness yet another successful story.

It was an eye-opener to see children, youth, and adults being impacted by the various programs that our team had prepared. I remember that as the session had ended in one of our evangelistic meetings and the villagers were heading back to their homes, a lady approached me while we were packing our materials and asked if we would sing one more song, before we left. We then sang a song for her as she stood beside us carefully listening. When we were done singing, she thanked us and left with a genuine smile.

I saw that she looked very happy, and I was moved by that. For me, that was simply rendering a song, but for her it was a blessing. Sometimes, I underestimate the small things in life, thinking it may be too irrelevant to make any difference, but the lady gave me a good reminder that anything, big or small, when done wholeheartedly, can be a blessing for others.

Throughout these challenges, God has taught me that He will use me even in the simplest ways to reach out to others. In this mission trip, I believe that each of the team members and the people that we come across in the mission field experienced God’s love, and as the pastor of KESI said, "we were there to have a close encounter with God". To be able to participate in this mission trip was a great opportunity for me to grow in faith and to have a closer walk with God. This is my testimony.

Art Day 2020

We also helped building to help their plantations get protection from the storms.
Art day was the first event in 2nd semester, and what I enjoyed its emphasis on Chinese calligraphy. There are so many words which have Chinese characters in the Korean language. Many Korean people have their given name in Chinese characters and meanings. However, my given name is a pure Korean name, so I always write only my family name in a Chinese character. This day was no different, but still I really enjoyed it. That’s because sometimes one short word makes a stronger impression. In addition, there was a calligraphy teacher who helped us to write characters properly. I asked Mr. Li (HKAC’s Gardener Emeritus) to write my family name “Ryu” in Chinese character format “柳” and it looked super awesome! When comparing with this expert style, my writing looked childish just like a little kid’s effort. I still have the piece of calligraphy paper from Art Day 2020, and I will keep it a long, long time. We used ink stone, ink, brush, and red papers. The last time I used these materials was when I was in elementary school, so I felt very renewed and happy. It was really a simple activity, but it brought me pleasant childhood memories, reignited my calligraphy interest and gave me joy.

I decided to become a missionary about a year ago, and I prayed to God to show me a place where I can go to have my first experience as a student. God answered my prayers through a friend who called me and talked to me about this project here in Hong Kong. So I decided to send my application and see what would happen. Everything worked out smoothly, and so I knew it truly was God’s will. Here in HKAC, we don’t have many Adventist students, so being able to help out a bit here is already a lot. I’ve been able to meet friends from around the world and make friendships that I will never forget. Also, being here as a Student Ambassador makes you feel like you have this huge responsibility for others, so they can learn to follow Jesus’ steps. But it turns out that you end up learning so much more from students as well. If you are interested in becoming a Student Ambassador, just close your eyes and pray to let God give you the answer. Believe me, this place is not an easy field, but God makes things easier. We are just asked to be His faithful ambassadors on this earth, and He does the job. HKAC is waiting for you!

I want to start by saying I didn’t expect to be working as a Student Ambassador in a foreign country for a year. Having just graduated from college, with a few good paying career opportunities to consider, I was looking forward to starting the next chapter of my life. However, God had a different plan in store for me. It was one that involved me being on the other side of the world. My experience has been life-changing to say the least. I never did any missionary work previously, so this was the first time for me. Although I was initially nervous, I’m glad I still made the decision to come here to Hong Kong Adventist College. It helped me to see things in different perspectives, to see that I still had some more growing to do and that progress never stops. Even as I was sharing Jesus’ messages to the young people here, I myself was also growing closer to Christ. I made very good friends here and had nice memories I will remember for life. I encourage anyone who would like to experience missionary life in a unique way to apply for the Student Ambassador position.
I have been richly blessed to be a Student Ambassador this year. From the moment I arrived on campus, this place felt like home. I have learned a lot about myself and the many different cultures represented on this campus. As an Ambassador, I am both a staff member and a student. Some of my favorite activities and responsibilities have been leading in worship programs, taking a few classes, socializing with the students, giving bible studies, playing violin with my roommates, planning games/social events, and making short trips to go sightseeing.

I know God is working through each person here. I love how all of us, including faculty staff, administrators, church pastors, student ambassadors, and SDA students are all one team focused on doing whatever it takes to lead students to meet Christ as their personal Savior.

From the beginning, I knew that I was coming to Hong Kong because God wanted me to do so. So, I believe that knowing that made me more confident to travel so far away from home. Ever since I arrived on campus, I enjoyed getting to know new places and new people. Each activity we organized or participated in brought me closer to someone. Sometimes it was a volleyball match, sometimes it was going to the beach together, and other times it was simply eating together in the cafe. Back in America, I had a super busy life, working the maximum hours students were allowed, having a full-time course schedule at school, and still being part of some extracurricular activities. It was kind of a drastic change once I got here. Back there I had my whole day scheduled; I had no free time. At HKAC I learned how to organize my free time to still be productive. I do not regret it, not even for a second, my decision to be in Hong Kong. I can see that I became more conscious about being a good representative of Christ, and slowly I can also see how I impacted the lives of people I got to know here.
Living the life of a Student Ambassador is full of surprises. Your schedule may change from week to week, you’re faced with an endless supply of small tasks, and you’re on the top of many people’s list when they need help.

For an introverted person, this may be a life that you find difficult to cope with and may even pass up on, because of all the uncertainty that is part of this experience. However, this was an opportunity that I grabbed onto, because of all the blessings I saw God provide during this experience.

HKAC is located just outside of a city center; it’s where you can find relative peace and quiet in one of the busiest cities in the world. This silence is met with an endless supply of people offering their "Hellos" and "Good Mornings" each and every day you live here, there by filling you up with the care and compassion that seems to be missing in the city. This care and compassion manifests itself into food when you are hungry, clothes when you are cold, and a prayer when you feel empty inside.

Leung, Ka Wai - Diploma in Pre-University Studies

During the last semester, I think it’s been quite easy for me in certain subjects such as Chinese, art and math, mostly because of the tutorial I already learned in secondary school. However, English has been my weakness. The time flew by very fast. Every day I woke at 7am and went to school by MTR and minibus, and then it just seems like there were only a few weeks left in the last semester. According to my results, I think I should improve in my attendance and English. Last year, because of an illness and some social issues, I missed too many lessons, and I hoped to catch up during Spring 2020 semester. What did I do well during this last semester? That must be handing in homework on time. The DPUS course helped me learn a lot. I really liked the setting of two semesters with different subjects. In Fall 2019 semester I took health class and in Spring 2020 semester, I took psychology class. That enabled me to learn both subjects without too much pressure. This DPUS course let me feel like being part of a family, since we always helped each other in class.

Everyone is so friendly and polite here in HKAC. Whenever I have any questions or problems, they try to answer my questions or help me to solve the problem. I’m grateful for their assistance. Also, I met many new friends from different countries here. They shared their cultures and traditions with me, and sometimes they liked to teach me their language too. Furthermore, I think HKAC provides really nice quiet places like the library and the student lounge for students to study, and we can go there after our classes finished. Whenever I had an exam, I liked to study there in those places, since those are places that helped me to stay focused. Furthermore, the atmosphere in HKAC is peaceful and quiet. As a dormitory student, I liked to take a walk after my meals. While I’m walking, I can enjoy the view and relax. Last but not least, I would like to thank all the teachers and students who helped me this year. Thank you for all of your kindness; I had a great time here!

Studying at HKAC was one of the best decisions I have ever made. Everyone can showcase their talents and truly participate in this family. Since this is not a huge college, teachers, students, and even staff really bond well together. I could be friends with schoolmates and also some senior people as well. Moreover, I was able to work with people all around the world, which allowed me to get in touch with this multicultural environment.

I am thankful to have had the opportunities to experience more about HKAC outside the classroom. When it comes to seeking a job, I find that the experience in working on campus as a student helper at different departments and Student Life Council were unexpectedly useful. Therefore, I would like to thank everyone I have met on campus who gave me such a pleasant journey.

From a foreign student to becoming part of the campus community, these few years of college experiences enriched me in a way, which I couldn’t describe simply by using mere words. I took this opportunity to study abroad knowing that it would greatly affect my personal life, especially in a Christian College. It did not cease to amaze me. Spiritually, the campus community was always there for me, whenever I felt an issue arise. A special thanks to Pastor Tyson Moody for teaching me Bible studies!

I’m not one of the top tier students in college, but thanks to the Department of Psychology teachers, whenever problems arose, they were always there to provide support. Special thanks to Department Chair Ms. Priscilla Wong and Ms. Anna Chim of the Counselling department for providing more than academic support, because for us foreign students, emotional support is important as well.

One of the factors which encourages me to study in HKAC is because of their annual missionary trips to different part of the South East Asia region. Life changing experiences happen, when you surrender yourself to God. Special thanks to Ms. Arlene Siagian, Pastor Seo, Ms. Kat Ma, Mr. Brondo and all those whom I couldn’t mention here.

Special thanks to President Dan Cheung for always being in front of us, leading this college and community. Thank you, because you made it possible for someone like me to graduate. As another journey awaits me, Isaiah 26:3 will be a parting gift from me to those of you who are reading this message.
Khan, Khadeeja - Department of Psychology

My university life has been nothing short of an adventure. These four years were a series of blood, sweat and tears. I found everlasting friendships, and some friendships left me with lessons of growth and change. I remember my first day of college feeling a little nervous and insecure. Coming from England and speaking English differently, I feared I may not fit in. However, today I write this reminiscing the laughter, the fun, the happiness I shared with nearly everyone on campus, and especially how I was welcomed with warmth and open arms by everyone.

I spent way too long sitting on the bench behind the Bayview Church, which faces the sea, and will miss that the most. This campus taught me strength, resilience and willpower. Now I graduate with confidence and as new and much braver versions of myself. I hope life continues to teach us lessons we need in order to grow and successfully achieve happiness. These four years will be treasured forever.

Yu, Si-lok Carina - Department of Psychology

Initially coined by Carl Roger “An individual can move forward and become what they are capable of becoming under a growth-promoting climate” To me, this school, the teachers and the students here all played an indispensable role in helping me become a better person.

Before coming to this school, the only goal I had was to go to a top-tier university.
The failure of doing so would have been a disaster for me, especially since I had lived my whole life in a safe corner and never previously got to experience any kind of setback. The friendliness, encouragement, and benevolence obtained here at HKAC all helped me to bounce back from defeats and equipped me to go beyond my own limits.

Graduating means I have to get out of this comfort zone to get a real taste of what is so-called reality. The slackening economic growth, chaotic society and the exorbitant costs of living, all prompt me to step back and to continue to indulge in my comfort zone. Gladly, I am different from who I was four years ago and am no longer the girl who buckles under any pressure. Despite such distressing situations, simply by knowing that there will always be people supporting me, that fact gives me tremendous courage to contend with all the difficulties and potential obstacles ahead in life.
Yeoh, Zhu Wei Jonathan - Department of Psychology

Hong Kong Adventist College has one of the most beautiful, picturesque campuses in this region. Hong Kong Adventist College is located in Clearwater Bay, New Territories, Hong Kong. This neighborhood was covered by land and sea, which made this college all the more like a cottage in a fairytale land. Furthermore, this campus features incredibly green foliage that soothes souls and calms minds. Above all, the old British style buildings put together within this scenic picture made this campus looks even more magnificent, and I fell in love with the campus at first sight.

My name is Jonathan Yeoh, a four-year student at Hong Kong Adventist College. At this moment, I would like to tell you about my experience in this gorgeous college that I will never forget. On this lovely campus, I experienced the unity of the community. From workers to presidents, everyone always work together as a team to make this college a comfortable second home for all the students who studied here. Beyond that, the holistic forethought that they show towards the students in this college also made it more unique than other campuses. For example, the teachers on this campus are very caring towards every student, whether there are ups and downs within the student’s life or the campus itself. Next, I experienced the bountiful Christian spiritual lifestyle on this campus. The campus’s community is filled with a Christ-like way of thinking to help students to understand that there is a God who could help them in their obstacles in life. For example, when a student experiences life’s difficulties, teachers and chaplains will pray for the student who is in crisis. Moreover, each semester the school conducts a gospel week to share the love of Christ with the students by inviting numerous speakers to present this heavenly love of God.

Last but not least, I too experienced the healthy lifestyle that this college promotes. Hong Kong Adventist College is a vegetarian-based campus that encourages the community to live in a holistic, healthy lifestyle. Staying healthy is beneficial for our body, as the Bible says in 1 Corinthians 6:19-20: “Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore, honor God with your bodies.” And also, in 1 Timothy 4:8, the word of God says: “For physical training is of some value, but godliness has value for all things, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come.” Lastly in Ephesians 2:10 expresses that “For we are God’s masterpiece. He has created us anew in Christ Jesus, so we can do the good things he planned for us long ago.”

In conclusion, Hong Kong Adventist College is a unique college that not only focuses on a student’s academic achievement but also on his or her mental, physical and spiritual achievements. Furthermore, Hong Kong Adventist College serves as a platform for students to learn who God is, and what plan He has for each of the students on campus. Moreover, Hong Kong Adventist College encourages the community to stay healthy in life, so that we may be physically and mentally healthy throughout our lifespan. Lastly, Hong Kong Adventist College is a blessing to the community around the Clearwater Bay area, as this college opens its door to anyone willing to learn more about the love of the Creator, Our Lord in Heaven.

HKAC was the college that I stumbled upon at an information booth, which was located in my high school. This was after an announcement of our DSE results. At that time, I was frustrated with my plans for further studies. Fortunately, one of the ladies at the booth was telling me it would be a great opportunity for me to explore something diverse and fascinating. I told myself ‘Why not?’ This was how I started my education here in HKAC. As time goes by, and as my graduation is right around the corner, the most intriguing thing I can say about this college is the serene vibe that inspires me to continue studying. Although this college is on a smaller scale compared to other local colleges or universities in Hong Kong, the tranquility and the studying environment in historical buildings lifted my academic abilities into a whole new level. I have made many new friends here who are culturally and internationally diverse. This factor enhances my chance to absorb different languages apart from English. The teachers have benevolent hearts in guiding me in academics courses providing me a clear direction in how to treat offers and handle matters. A massive sense of love is lingering around this wonderful college. Studying never ceases. There is no way to cut corners. Stay hungry, Stay foolish. Salut!

Ng, Hong Yee Peony - Department of Health

From kindergarten to college, this is my fourth time to graduate, but it is not the last one. Learning is the thing we keep doing though out one’s life away from a school. “Instruction ends in the schoolroom, but education ends only with life.” —Frederick W. Robertson

Chau, Chun Yin Jacky - Department of Health

HKAC is the place where I really grew up. For me, it has been an adventure dealing with unpredictable problems, unexpected issues and unforgettable experiences. Before I went to college, I had already attended worship services with the Seventh-day Adventist church family. At HKAC, I grew up. What I learned is how to explore my own potential, apply my social skills, and defend my own rights. I also found the truth about human nature. There were many situations that made me recognize there was no time for me to stay inside my comfort zone. It was time to upgrade myself. For example, before I graduated, thank you Lord, I already achieved two coaching licenses —NCSF Certified Personal Trainer and Certified Strength Coach. Both are accredited by National Commission for Certifying Agencies (NCBA), which represents the highest professional level. So, yes! This is the place that will break your own barriers! Can you imagine that? Your qualification could be better than that of the tutor? No! But HKAC makes it happen! Although there were many challenges that I never imagine could occur, I will still graduate. It’s a miracle that I can feel the Lord is standing by me. If you would like a special university life then HKAC would be a good choice for you! Classical architecture, legendary education methods, materials, tools, and tutoring of all time. HKAC is also the perfect interpretation of the “less is more” concept. A beautiful campus and the best vegetarian cafeteria are also the highlights of the campus. I highly recommend that you try to explore the campus!

Dear Alumni and Friends of HKAC, Please enjoy this photography focused, special 80th anniversary campus edition of the HKAC newsletter! The program guide pages are included at the end, so that you can view the celebration weekend’s activities.

After eight months of faculty and staff steering committee planning, Hong Kong Adventist College’s (HKAC) Clear Water Bay campus launched an 80th anniversary alumni homecoming celebration in late October. Approximately 260 local and global alumni and friends, of HKAC and the former Clear Water Bay Sam Yuk Middle School, confirmed they would participate in the October 26, 2019 gala dinner held on a pleasant autumn evening. Employees of HKAC, HKAA, and nearby Adventist sister organizations (i.e. Hong Kong Adventist Hospital, Hong Kong-Macao Conference, and Sam Yuk Secondary Schools of Kowloon and Tai Po) were also invited to join in the festivities.

The weekend celebration kicked off on Friday, October 25th, with a Musical Vesper service in King Huy Hall. HKAC Foundation Board Member Dr. Peter Young was invited to lead the way during the last half of the service. On the morning of Saturday, October 26th, a Sabbath Worship service took place from approximately 11:00 am to 12:30 pm. Elder Dr. Barbara Choi (HKAC Academic Dean, Spring & Summer 2020) was the translator for this worship service.

A well attended Sabbath lunch was provided after the Musical Vesper service. There was time to reconnect with fellow alumni and reminisce about former school days on the Clear Water Bay campus. After lunch, energetic alumni walking enthusiasts met at the campus’ front gate and were led by President Dan Cheung to hike up to High Junk Peak in the Clear Water Bay community.

Former Clear Water Bay Sam Yuk Middle School Principal Bunjee Choi led the Sundown Worship Vesper service on the campus front lawn. This was immediately followed by 80th anniversary speeches by HKAC President Dan Cheung, Chinese Mission Union President Bob Folkenberg, Jr. and HKAC Alumni Association President Anthony Poon. Then, a commemorative monument ribbon cutting ceremony featured the aforementioned gentlemen as well as HKAC Foundation Board Chairman Caleb Liem, North American San Yu Association President Marie Char, Co-founder of Bress International Group Ltd. Angus Cheung, Hong Kong-Macao Conference President Heywood Cham, and Hang Hau Rural Committee Chairman Kai Hong Lau.

We were blessed with a benediction by 100 year old Pastor David Tien Ming Chu, son of Elder Chu Yue-tat who was the architect of Clear Water Bay campus’ original eight buildings (five of which still exist today and are considered Grade 2 historic structures). Pastor Chu was born in 1919 and studied at the South China Training Institute in China. The Institute was later moved to the Clear Water Bay location. Pastor David Chu was the first Chinese President for the Hong Kong Macau Conference.

Right before the start of the gala dinner, gathered guests were entertained with a Chinese traditional Qilin mythical creature dance performance by members of the Clear Water Bay community’s Ha Yeung Village. The performance will help usher in good luck onto the campus for another 80+ years ahead! Next, the buffet gala dinner began around 7:00 pm and featured delicious vegetarian menu items from Green Box, Green Common, and HKAC’s chef. There were several delicious desserts to eat, including those made in the campus kitchen. Gala dinner guests also enjoyed two flavors of cold pressed juice in bottles festooned with an 80th anniversary logo; these delicious juices were sponsored by alumni / Bress International Group Ltd. Co-Founder Angus Cheung.

During dinner, guests were entertained with live orchestral music, songs from Pastor Zhang who was the 100th anniversary coordinator in Guangzhou, China, a student choir with rousing renditions of tunes from “The Sound of Music”, a photo slide show, and a “lucky draw” contest with several gift certificate winners! All guests were treated to a decorated mirror frame sponsored by a generous alumnus nicknamed “Chile Pepper” plus a hardcover, 80th anniversary commemorative album created by Alumni/ Communications and Marketing team members. By 9:15 pm, gala dinner guests finished their meals and began heading home with full stomachs, full minds, and full hearts! See you at the 85th anniversary!

King Huy Hall was built on the campus of Hong Kong Adventist College (HKAC) in 1965. The Hall was built by Chan Shun and his brothers, in memory of their father Chan King Huy. Since it was built, King Huy Hall has been used regularly by Bayview Adventist Church for its Sabbath worships, Wednesday night prayer meetings, and Friday night vespers. It has also been used by the College to conduct weekly chapels, graduation ceremony, student recitals, week of prayers, and other educational retreats and seminars.

In addition to the Administrative building, King Huy Hall has been a significant icon for HKAC campus. Alumni and friends of the college love to have their pictures taken in front of King Huy Hall, whenever they come to visit.

For the past 54 years, King Huy Hall stood at the edge of the Clear Water Bay campus overlooking the Pacific Ocean. It is visible to the residents down and across the valley. Many local residents often told us how they appreciate the peaceful and colorful lights generated by the stained glass windows of King Huy Hall.

Although King Huy Hall withstood rain, wind, sun, typhoon, and extreme humidity of Clear Water Bay over the years, the structure and interior of the building gradually showed deterioration. The floor, stage, and wood structures were severely damaged by termites. Secondly, the air conditioning units, light fixtures, PA system, and windows were aged and needed to be replaced. Also, the pews had started to decay and crack, so that they were uncomfortable on which to sit.

In summary, King Huy Hall was desperately in need of a major renovation. Tom and Caleb Chan, sons of late Chan Shun, through their Foundation donated HK$1 million each, together with another HK$1 million donated from Chan Shun International Foundation. This provided majority funding for this over HK$4 million Phase I renovation project. Along with other generous donations, Phase I renovation was completed in October 2019. The Phase II renovation, which will focus on replacing the hall floor, refinishing the pews, and building a new foyer, is scheduled to begin in Summer of 2020. The cost of Phase II construction is estimated to be HK$2.5 million.

On May 29, 2019, from 2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., Dr. Timothy Standish gave a presentation that attracted fifty-six audience members at Hong Kong Adventist College. Dr. Standish is a professor of biology at Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Michigan. He holds a B.S. in zoology from Andrews University, an M.S. in biology from Andrews University, and a Ph.D. in biology and public policy from George Mason University (University of Virginia), Charlottesville, Virginia.

In addition, Dr. Standish teaches genetics at Andrews University. He is currently researching the genetics of cricket (Acheta domesticus) behavior.

Dr. Standish's discussion at Hong Kong Adventist College included matters related to organisms, cells, and proteins. Changing even one amino acid in a protein can alter its function dramatically.

A famous example of this is the mutation that causes sickle cell anemia in humans. This disease causes a multitude of symptoms, ranging from liver failure to tower skull syndrome. It's caused by the replacement of an amino acid called glutamate, normally at position number six, with another amino acid called valine.

This single change causes a massive difference in how the alpha-globin subunit of hemoglobin works. The ultimate, sad consequence of this seemingly insignificant mutation in the protein causes premature death in thousands of individuals each year.

The entire system, not just a single protein, must exist prior to selection occurring. Science does not work on the basis of picking and choosing data to suit a treasured theory. Dr. Standish chose the path of science, which also happens to be the path of faith in the Creator. From a video, Dr. Standish showed the audience a talk given by Dr. Michael G. Hasel about how wonderful an Archeology discovery demonstrates science and faith in the Bible, which depicts the wisdom of God.

I believe God provides evidence of His creative power for all to experience personally in our lives. To know the Creator does not require an advanced degree in science or theology. Each one of us has the opportunity to experience His creative power in re-creating His character within us, step by step, day by day.

We thank HKAC Dean of Students, Dr. Sam Shum's wife, Mrs. Lily Shum, who prepared delicious refreshments at the end of the presentation.
HKAC’s Hong Kong Power Lifting Junior Champion 2019

Article and Photos by Christian Carlo Santos Angeles, Sophomore, HKAC Department of Health

Balancing school, work and training for four to five times a week may be difficult but with dedication, patience and hard work you can achieve anything. I was awarded the 77kg Junior championship against men older than me in my division and was able to squat 195kg, bench 127kg, and dead lift 212kg. I will continue to work hard and to achieve my goal this year to break the Hong Kong junior records.

Interview: Bervinda Chan, Retired Dean of Students (July 2019)

By Bervinda Chan and Jenifer Shiu

1) How did you embark on an academic career and arrive to be Dean of Students at Hong Kong Adventist College (HKAC)?

Back in 2002, when I was serving at Taiwan Adventist College as the Chair of Health Education Department, my late father became very ill towards the end of the second semester of that school year. So, I arranged an urgent permanent return to Hong Kong. While I was attending to my father at the hospital, Dr. Daniel Chuah, the then President of HKAC, called me and offered me the position of Dean of Students. At the time, my daily agenda was to take care of the needs of my father; therefore, looking for a job was not a priority for me. Evidently, it was God’s providence, even though I had not thought about it. From then on, I have never had a moment of doubt that I have work to do at HKAC!

2) What have been the highlights of your time on the Clear Water Bay campus?

Each year, we have students battling with life struggles relating to family situations and/or mental and developmental health issues. I am so thankful that I have like-minded colleagues who see undesirable behaviours as opportunities to show students that there are better ways to cope with life issues. Life issues. We would sometimes spend countless hours counselling students and their parents. As a result of these endeavours, we educators learn and grow, too.

3) How has the Lord been inspirational in helping you guide the student population at HKAC?

I am greatly inspired by John Ortberg, the author for Everybody’s Normal Till We Get To Know Them. Mr. Ortberg stated: “Jesus sees a little of what God intended when He made human being. He sees a little island of shalom in a sea of brokenness”. It’s comforting to know that Jesus sees a glimmer of hope, even in our fallen state. This knowledge has been a guide for my daily work. It’s helped me to show students that they have to lead happier and more fulfilling lives, no matter what situations in which they may find themselves.
4) Can you think of any funny, extraordinary, or poignant situations that have occurred, during your tenure at HKAC?

Continually over a month back in 2013, one female student, whenever she passed by, would call out, “Miss Chan, I love you!” At first, I thought she was joking because she always said that in my Comprehensive English class. This former student would also pretend to be upset, stating “Miss Chan, I hate you!” when I got her to perfect her writing or gave her more writing tasks. She is one of those students for whom I have a soft spot. I got to know her, when she was a grade 10 student. This was during my stint as a one-year interim principal for the English Secondary Section in 2011. Because of her frequent attendance and attention issues, due to family and personal problems, we had meaningful conversations almost every week. When she joined the college, we became very much like friends, rather than a teacher and student dynamic in class. She surprised me with her study attitude change over time.

For instance, though she was very tired after working until past midnight, she willed herself to arrive to my 8:30 am class ahead of time. She would try diligently to keep herself awake, during class. My former student’s earlier verbal outbursts were due to the fact that she simply had a hard time adjusting to new classes.

5) Have you thought about what fun, interesting activities you’d like to pursue during your retirement?

One of my dreams would be to do is pick up painting and drawing again, since I dropped these creative activities because I had to concentrate on work responsibilities. Another project I would like to pursue is volunteering at one particular NGO that’s focused on helping children with learning disabilities. I would like to know more about children with special educational needs.

6) Tell us what you will miss the most once you retire as HKAC’s Dean of Students?

I would miss meetings. To me, a meeting is an intensive training ground for professional and personal development. In meetings, we must first listen to what others would say in order to make a sound and balanced judgment. Often times, I took home new insights, after a meeting. Also, to assert our opinion against powerful people requires courage, but to be able to compromise for the greater good takes humility. This really builds character!

HKAC Transfer Students to Andrews University (USA)

By HKAC President Dan Cheung

Since the Global Transfer Student Discount was implemented four years ago, close to 50 students have transferred from Hong Kong Adventist College (HKAC) to Andrews University for the past three years. All these transferred students studied at HKAC for at least a year. When they transferred their studies to Andrews University, they were individually given a 50% tuition discount.

With the guidance and support of Biology Department faculty member, Dr. Brian Wong, these HKAC students have been getting together regularly at least once a week. They gather together to have special dinners, to study, and to worship.

Regular Friday night vespers and Sabbath worship services have been organized by this group of HKAC transfer students. We would like to consider Andrews University as an extended campus of HKAC!
